BROOKLYN, N.Y.
AUG 1
11-30 A.M.
1917

NAVY YARD
STATION

U.S. POSTAGE
2 CENTS 2

Miss Frances Levine
70 Somers St.,
Brooklyn,
N. Y.

July Aug. 1st, 1917.

Darling Frances;-

Got home last night pretty early, but, oh, so wet. Had to sleep last night with absolutely nothing on, and talking about sweating, you ought to see me now. It's just streaming down my face and body. Jingle, but its some hot.

Nobody could sleep last night, & when I got up this morning, everybody got up with me. The streets here crowded with people sleeping on the sidewalks. I came did feel sorry for them.

How are you feeling, Toot? Are you suffering from the heat as you did yesterday I hope not, but am sure you do need me to wipe your face a-nice, eh? Sweetheart mine, I sure do love you.

All the boys are at breakfast while I'm writing. I didn't go in because I had breakfast home.

No more Toot so will close with all my love to my precious little sweetheart

Yours by,

Joe